

The train

Written by: Sander mulder

Published by: Gerda viet

Edited by: Sander mulder

Chapter 1

It's quiet in the train. Next to me sits a girl making homework. On the other side sits a man on a laptop. Suddenly we all hear a hard sound. What was that? Everyone jumps from the sound and looks around in shock. When the train suddenly stops with a jolt and a unholy screech from the wheels. I look out the window to my left and see a military attack chopper in the distance making its way towards us and quickly realize why, there here for me. I swiftly stand up from my seat and run to the back of the train cart, and see that the door is locked, so I gather my powers and create a fireball in my hand and slam it down on top of the lock breaking it into a shower of sparks and throw open the door as the smouldering remains of the lock fall to the floor. But the moment I run outside I see the chopper hovering in the air with its weapons aimed at me ready to fire "surrender quietly and you will not be harmed" the pilot calls over the speakers making me scoff at him "like I would come with you quietly and just let myself get turned into a science experiment" I reply to him with anger in my voice, as I make another fireball in my hand and throw it at him hitting the front of the helicopter setting it on fire forcing the pilot to land and extinguish the flames, giving me a chance to run. So I quickly jump of the railing of the train cart and start running to the edge of the forest hoping to lose them in there, but just as I'm about to reach the edge of the forest I hear the pilot yell out orders "DON'T LET HIM GET AWAY YOU IDIOT'S, GET HIM!!!" I hear him scream out making me turnaround and look behind me only to see a team of fully armed soldiers starting to run after me, prompting me to run faster so as to not end up as some kind of quinea pig in a lab, and with my extra burst of speed I shoot into the forest and dive behind the nearest fallen tree and hide under the roots just as the squad of soldiers enters the forest. And it appears luck is at my side as the wind starts to pick up and blows away my tracks, so I make myself as small as possible under the tree and try to stay as quiet as possible and wait for them to leave while I remember how this all happened.

It all started last week when I was hiking in the mountains and it seemed like a perfect clear day, but I was soon proven wrong as when I reached the peak of the mountain the very sky turned as black as the darkest of nights with flashes of oddly coloured lightning for I saw flashes of red, blue, green, brown and purple and while I was admiring this beautiful spectacle IT happened, with a flash and the sound of the very heavens tearing apart I got hit by a lightning bolt filling my vision with the colours red, blue, green, brown and purple. And that was the last thing I saw before I lost consciousness

End chapter 1

Chapter 2

Darkness.....darkness was the only thing I could see as I slowly drifted through this empty black void. Was I dead? Was this how it would end, With a flash and a bang, as a tragic accident? While these thought's raced though my mind in a wild frenzy I could feel my anger slowly growing and growing, until I could no longer contain my wrath and it exploded outwards in the shape of a crimson red shockwave painting the black void around me a pure scarlet red with my anger. After my outburst I noticed that the redness around me was slowly moving together towards one point which seemed to grow more red and brighter by the second until the entire void around me was black again except for that one spot of red which now seemed to have taken on the shape of a giant red sun blinding me and forcing me to look away from this spectacle. After waiting a couple of seconds the spots from my eye's slowly started to fade away and I could look towards the "sun" again only to come face to face with a creature of myth and fiction sending a chill of terror down my spine, for the sun had slowly started to change into a being that could only be described as fear incarnated. First the wings blasted out of the sides of the massive sun spraying lava everywhere, then the tail bursted out of the underside which coiled around the entire sun before ending at the bottom when finally the body and head appeared, completely destroying the entire star leaving nothing but the terrifying visage of this dragon which had scales of steel and lava as blood. While I gaze at this dragon in fear I desperately hope it dos not see me, but the moment I think that it opens it's eye's and looks straight at me and says but one word:

mortal!!!

End chapter 2