What is practical education

Practical education is a regular form of continued education for students of 12 to 18 years old who are suited for this. we work as follows:

On the way to work

In practical education students learn through practical experience. So they learn by going hands on. We associate theory with practical assignments and internships. The purpose of our education is to lead students to independent work. Students will develop skills they will need to work independently. A group of the students flows straight through from practical education into working. A different group comes through continued education [often the MBO] onto the labor market. Every practical school has internship coaches and a large network of companies and organizations to help find students a fitting work place.

An approach that works

In practical education every student has their own learning plan. This learning plan is created after close consultation with the student and parents/guardians. Basis of determining this route are the changes and talents of the student. We look at what the student can and wants to do. Distinctive for our education is that we emphasize what students are good at. Next to that we make sure that they feel good and can be themselves. That means that our teacher can not only be found in the classroom but are coaches and mentors as well. This way students get confidence and go to school happily.

Working on self reliance

Next to the qualifications that are necessary to work independently, inside practical education attention is also given to teaching and growing self reliance. Involving social skills, but also practical business like cooking and keeping up with the household. In addition, our students are introduced to various sport and play activities. This way they can learn how to fill in their free time.

Through set goals and approach of practical education students arrive in work that truly fits them. That's why we can say with pride: practical education works!
